Dear School Counselor:

Here is an opportunity to reward your most deserving students for outstanding academic and athletic achievements. I am referring to the U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award Program.

Since 1981, the U.S. Army Reserve has awarded our beautiful Olympic-style medallion to more than 200,000 students across the country. Recipients have included class valedictorians, National Honor Society members—even an Olympic gold medalist.

The U.S. Army Reserve believes that young people should strive to be the best they can be in all areas of their lives. The Scholar/Athlete Award Program is our way of recognizing and rewarding selected high school students who are doing just that—excelling in the classroom and on the athletic field.

Please examine the enclosed selection form. Then choose one male and one female student who have demonstrated excellence in both academics and athletics. You may want to confer with your school principal and athletic director about your school’s choices. Once your choices are made, the completed selection form must be returned at least 2 weeks prior to your award presentation date, but not later than May 31.

Your local Army Reserve recruiter will be happy to answer any questions you may have. The recruiter will receive your awards and will be able to assist you in coordinating the award presentations at a date, time, and location of your choice. If you are unable to contact the recruiter, call the Scholar/Athlete Award program coordinator at (XXX) XXX-XXXX.*

Participation in the program implies no obligation of your school or the award recipients. I hope you agree that the U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award Program is highly worthwhile and a fine way of publicly recognizing those students who have worked so hard to be Army Strong.

Sincerely,

(Battalion Commander’s Signature Block)

Today at (Name of HS), I would like to continue what has become an important tradition, by presenting the U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award to two of this school’s finest scholar/athletes.

The two students whom the Army Reserve honors this year have achieved the winning combination—excellence in both academics and athletics. They have achieved a balance that many people aspire to but only a handful achieve. I am happy to be here to give these students special recognition for their accomplishments.

The U.S. Army Reserve National Scholar/Athlete Award was created in 1981 by the Army Reserve to honor top students. More than 200,000 high school students have received the scholar/athlete award, so today’s recipients join a long list of distinguished scholar/athletes—students who are team captains, debate champions, student officers, community leaders, and Olympic athletes—students who have put forth that extra effort to be Army Strong.

I am proud to have the opportunity to honor two of the Nation’s finest young people right here at (Name of HS). Let’s give a round of applause to this year’s (Name of HS) Army Reserve National Scholar/Athletes, (Name of Female Recipient and Name of Male Recipient).

Appendix B
Recommendations for Recruiters and Presenters

B-1. The presenter
a. There is a range of options for presenters, based on who might be available locally and the relationship they have with you or your unit. Whenever possible, try to get a presenter from your local USAR unit.

b. When presenting to a school that has not previously participated in the program, look for your best available presenter—the one with the best fit with your school’s audience.

c. A recruiter should accompany the presenter to the awards ceremony whenever possible.

d. Retired military representatives should not be used for presentations.

B-2. Planning your presentation
a. Call the school the week before the presentation to tell them you have the awards and to make sure the date for the presentation has not changed. Reconfirm all plans with the school’s point of contact. If possible, look at the room where the ceremony is scheduled. Seeing the room in advance will help you feel more comfortable and at ease when it’s time to make the presentation.

b. Make sure the certificate is prepared properly (recheck spelling of names), the medallion is not damaged, and the ribbons and clasp is in good condition. If you notice a problem, call the battalion APA office immediately.

c. Review the background information about the award recipients. The selection form accompanying the certificate provides basic information about the students’ achievements and the presenter will find this useful.

d. Figures 4 and 5 are samples of award presentation speeches, with blanks for information appropriate to your specific situation. Remember, keep your remarks short.

B-3. Uniform
Either the Army Dress Blue or the Class A uniform is appropriate.
B-4. Publicity
   a. If there is a chance that the award ceremony can be used to get some positive publicity for the Army, coordinate this with your battalion APA.
   b. A fill-in-the-blank press release (see fig 6) can be used to publicize the event.
